SAM'L T. WILLIAMS, Political Editor.

FRIDAY.....JANUARY 10 1873.

A HISTORY OF NORTH CAROLINA--WHO WILL WRITE IT?

Less than twelve months ago, the press of the State, with great unanimity, made urgent and patriotic appeals to Gov. Graham, to undertake the highly responsible and arduous work of writing a full and complete history of North Carolina, from the date of its settlements to the present time.

Of all men in the State, public sentiment seemed to point to Gov. Graham as the best fitted by habits, by education, by literary research, by dignity of character, by impartial judgment, by love of historic lore, by scholarly attainments, by accuracy of knowledge and profound learning and ability, to give to mankind a just, faithful and reliable account of the historic events that have transpired upon the soil of North Carolina.

But all appeals of the public press were in vain. The distinguished gentleman to whom they were addressed, could not find the opportunity, amidst the exacting duties of his profession, to write such a history as the State demanded. It was perhaps requiring too much of him, for the sake of his patriotic love for North Carolina, to abandon his private duties and sacrifice his individual interests, in order to engage upon an unprofitable and laborious task. For, however noble and commendable the undertaking might be, and we cannot conceive of one more honorable, it must be confessed that the chief reward of him who shall successfully accomplish it, will be the obligations of the public, and the gratitude of future generations, rather than any pecuniary return for the services rendered.

But having failed to induce Governor Graham to undertake the vital and necessary labor, shall the question be given up and the thought abandoned? Voices from the past, the present and the future, invoke us not to relinquish the sacred duty of urging upon the people of North Carolina, the necessity of preserving and perpetuating the historic records of the State, and the honorable deeds of her patriotic and distinguished citizens.

THE HISTORY OF NORTH CAROLINA MUST BE WRITTEN-- if we would cherish a proper respect for the memories of our ancestors, and the eventful occurrences that have been enacted within the borders of our State.

We believe the first appeal to Gov. Graham was made by R. B. Creely, Esq., Editor of the Elizabeth City Economist, and the proposition was seconded and endorsed, if we mistake not, by nearly every paper in the State.

But Gov. Graham has refused, and the prospect of having a history of North Carolina written, is no better today than it was twelve months ago.

Will not some one undertake it who is competent for the task? Cannot Mr. Creely himself, who is well-known as a polished and vigorous writer and a gentleman of literary taste and discriminating judgment, be induced to perform the duty which he suggested to Gov. Graham—the performance of which he urged so impressively and eloquently through his paper?

But Mr. Creely will not, who will? It is high time this matter was attended to. The work must be done! It has already been neglected too long. Every year of postponement will make the labor more difficult and embarrassing. Swiftly the hand of time is pushing out of sight many of the most important events in the career of the State, which will either soon be forgotten altogether—or transmitted to posterity through the dim and misty veil of tradition.

Will not our contemporaries throughout the State offer some suggestions on the subject?

WILL STOKES BE HANGED? Now that the jury have rendered a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Stokes, for killing James Fisk, Jr., the papers are discussing the probabilities and possibilities of the accused escaping the gallows after all. His counsel will file exceptions to the Judge's rulings, with the hope of obtaining a new trial.

The impression prevails that Stokes will not be hanged after all; that through the technicalities of the law, or by virtue of a pardon from the Governor, or from some other cause, he will never suffer the penalty prescribed by the law.

We do not see what, way will be opened for his escape. If the judgment of the Court is not enforced, so far as the public morals are concerned no advantage will be gained by his conviction, and the ends of justice will be frustrated at last.

A HIT AT THE GOVERNOR. The New North State, a Radical paper, recommends Rev. Geo. William Welker of Guilford, as a Republican who is "intelligent, well-educated and honest," and who, therefore, is well qualified according to Caldwell's language, for the position of Superintendent of Public Instruction, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. James Reid.

Marshal Bazaine is impatient to be tried. He believes that enough time has been had by those collecting evidence for the enlightenment of the military court before which he is to appear.

SAVE HIM FROM HIS FRIENDS.

In our comments upon Gov. Caldwell's inaugural address, we proved from the Governor's own language that he had doubts in his own mind about his being able to fill the offices in his testiment with his political supporters.

The Governor, in that remarkable address, stated that if he could not fill the office from his own party acceptably to himself, he would then consider it his duty to select a good man from the opposite party. He added:

"I hope, however, that I will be able to find in our own party intelligent, well-educated and honest men enough to fill the offices."

Now, how many offices has the Governor to bestow?

With the exception of his staff, we do not know of a half dozen appointments that will devolve upon him to make. True, a vacancy may now and then occur, which his Excellency, not "Accidence," will have to fill, but such contingencies do not happen often. The vacancies that take place by death or resignation are not very frequent.

It was, therefore, very unkind in the Governor to strike his party such a hard blow as to intimate that he might be compelled to look elsewhere than to its ranks for suitable appointees.

The Governor clearly means that he is not certain that he can name enough Radicals for the few appointments he will be called upon to make, who are sufficiently "intelligent, well-educated and honest" to fill the positions!

ONE BACK ON PINCHBACK.

The President is evidently disgusted at Pinchback's impudence and corruption.

That dusky Gubernatorial official has so far transcended his powers as to bring down upon his head the denunciation of the leading Republican newspapers of the country, as well as the displeasure of Grant.

"We publish, elsewhere, the inaugural address of Gov. Caldwell; also, communication criticising the production. Our correspondent, as he says, is a Republican of the straightest sect, and has a right to be heard a privilege which we hesitate not to accord. His strictures, in our opinion, are unnecessarily severe; yet, the language of the Governor's address, wherein he expresses the hope that he will be able to find in his own party intelligent, well-educated and honest men enough to fill the offices" strikes many Republicans as harsh, as well as unnecessary."

But this is not all. A Republican correspondent of that paper writing from Salem, N. C., assails the Governor very bitterly for using the language we have given. The following is an extract from the communication referred to by the New North State, which is written by a person whom the Editor vouches for as being "a Republican of the straightest sect":

"I trust that my interpretation is false, but it does look somewhat true and startling from the succeeding explanations of his aforesaid non-partisan declaration. For the Governor says that when he can't find a man in his own party to fill an office, acceptably to himself, he will select a good man from the other party. This is as cross-eyed a statement of future action as I ever gazed upon in public print."

He condemns in an emphatic manner the recent conduct of Pinchback as unjustifiable and an outrage upon the Constitution.

REFUSED TO QUASH.

The counsel of Mrs. Wharton have failed in their efforts to quash the indictment against her, charging her with an attempt to poison Eugene Vanness, in Baltimore, with his political supporters.

The indictment was found by the Grand Jury of the Criminal Court of Baltimore, in July 1871. It contains twelve counts and is founded on article 30, section 158 of the Maryland Code, which provides that "every person, his or her aids and abettors, who shall be convicted of the crime of attempting to poison any person, shall be sentenced to undergo a confinement in the penitentiary of not less than two nor more than ten years."

The case was removed to Annapolis, at the same time with the Ketchum murder case, of which she was acquitted after a full four days trial.

Mrs. Wharton was arraigned on Monday last, and her counsel gave notice that they would move to quash the indictment on the ground that the several counts included separate and distinct offenses. Our dispatches in yesterday's paper informed us that after argument, the Judges refused to quash, and preparations were made for entering regularly upon the trial.

The public will watch the case with deep interest, as it contains many of the same features that gave to the Ketchum trial its great celebrity.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

Richmond is scarce of water.

The measles are prevalent in Richmond.

Richmond has free vaccination and high whisky.

C. B. Ballard, of Stafford county, died Saturday night.

A Richmond belle received 210 calls on New Year's day.

The small pox has broken out among the negroes of Caroline.

Four more cases of small pox are reported in Alexandria.

Poisoning dogs is now a favorite amusement in Petersburg.

Mr. Thos. Ayre, of Upperville, recently died at the age of 90.

Norfolk is nervous about the shaky political pols still standing.

The Norfolk Virginian and Journal are proving bad grammar on each other.

Rev. Dr. Bussey, of the M. E. church, is reported in ill health at Alexandria.

The negroes, charged with felony, escaped Sunday night from Charlottesville jail.

Miss Elizabeth Sangster died suddenly, Christmas at her home in Fanquier, aged 90 years.

Petersburg young gentlemen go to run mills, get into rows and use slug shots. Good for Petersburg.

Three men, confined in the jail of Stafford county for robbery, broke out on Christmas eve and escaped.

Coleman Overton, negro, was found dead Friday near Charlottesville, with a bottle of whiskey beside him. That told the story.

Col. Y. Howe Payton is preparing a course of religious lectures to deliver in Alexandria, to raise means to establish a religious paper.

The store of Messrs. Gardner and Hoffman was injured by fire in Suffolk, Saturday, to the extent of $30,000. Insured. Caught from a cigar.

Napoleon's health had been quite feeble for some months, and his recent condition had been a source of much alarm to his family and immediate friends. He had been under the medical treatment of a number of physicians several days before his death, who had performed a surgical operation without giving relief, and had agreed on a second operation, which was to have been performed at 12 o'clock yesterday.

It is rumored that the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin has absolutely refused to sanction the marriage of his daughter to the Russian Grand Duke Vladimir, notwithstanding the latter having offered to forego the usual stipulation of a change of creed, and to consent to her remaining a Protestant.

Thus ends one of the most eventful careers in modern history.

Napoleon's death occurred, we presume of course, at Chisclhurst, although the telegram does not so state.

Otto Muller, late ex-Secretary of the Navy of Hanover, recently died at Messy and destitute at San Francisco.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Oysters are selling at 75 cents per gallon in Newbern.

Small pox has appeared in Friendship township, Guilford county.

The Wilmingtonians are wild with excitement over the approaching visit of Joe Jefferson.

Gen. Robert Ransom, of Wilmington, has been made Superintendent of the Florida Railroad.

There are two trees near High Point, which measure over 10 feet in diameter and are 100 feet high.

The Conference of the M. E. Church, North, convened in Charlotte yesterday. Bishop McCabe presiding.

The residence of Mr. John Pierson, at Reedy Fork, Guilford county, was destroyed by fire a few nights since. The family made a narrow escape.

A brakeman on the Wilmington Columbia & Augusta R. R. had his hand badly mashed in Wilmington the other day, while endeavoring to couple some freight cars.

Two colored men, at Rocky Mount, a few nights since at a dance, furnished sport for the crowd by hacking each other with pocket knives. Unfortunately nobody was killed.

John Savage had a row with a negro named Baysmore at Scotland Neck a day or two ago about money matters, and struck him such a savage blow on the head that he died the following day.

On the night of the 6th inst a gin house at Garysburg, belonging to E. T. Summerell, and containing 12 bales of cotton, was broken into, set on fire, and totally consumed. No insurance.

We regret to learn, says the Shelby Register of the 4th inst, that a little daughter of our fellow citizen, John Phifer, Esq., was accidentally killed at Bethel Church in this county, last week. The little girl was only ten years old, and during a recess, was running around the house. A young man was running around the house in an opposite direction, and meeting her at the corner struck her in the breast with his knee before he could check his speed. She fell and died in a few minutes.

Says the Goldsboro News: "In order to more fully accommodate the public, a daily through freight is now run in connection with the mail train; a set of new cars with passenger car trucks, and otherwise specially adapted for the purpose having been built. Special trains are also run to Morehead city in connection with the New York and Baltimore steamship lines, thus perfecting a system which insures speedy and prompt transportation. The enterprise displayed in this matter by the management of the route is very commendable, and will no doubt be fully appreciated by the public."

From the Report of the Tribune, Monday.

GUILTY!

E. S. Stokes Convicted of Murder in the First Degree—“May the Lord Have Mercy on Your Soul.”

THE VERDICT.

As soon as the jury retired (at 8:10 P.M.) for consultation, so general was the anticipation of a long deliberation that nearly all the spectators at once left the court room in a body, until scarcely more than forty persons, including the reporters, remained to wait for the verdict.

The prisoner and his male friends and relatives retired to the adjoining court room, in which Stokes had been accustomed to take his meals, and then the bustle and stir of settling down to wait was heard. Judge Boardman had gone to take his lunch, and it was rumored that the counsel on both sides had accompanied him. Half-whispered conversations sprang up all over the room, and comments on the case were made, and the merits and fairness of the arguments and the charge were freely discussed. The common, absorbing topic, however, was the result of the solemn conference at that moment holding in the upper room, where the jury, under lock and key, were painfully determining the question of life or death.

Stokes himself, as he walked to and fro in the room, appeared sanguine in regard to the result, and it is reported that this feeling existed so strong among his friends as well, that his cousin, Henry Stokes, had a bail bond made out half an hour before the return of the jury, ready to be signed at once in case the jury, as it seemed probable, should decide.

The nervousness which Stokes has all along displayed, and particularly while waiting for the verdict on the other trial, has completely vanished now, and he stepped about the room even smiling as he met his friends and received their words of encouragement and the sympathetic grasp of their hands. He smoked almost constantly, and was watched affectionately by his young brother Horace, who exhibited much more anxiety than Stokes himself.

At 9:45 P.M. he partook of a light supper of oysters. At 10 P.M. the jury came down into the chamber room, where a really sumptuous repast had been prepared, and spent 20 minutes over the meal, after which they again retired.

Meantime in the court room the ladies connected with the family of Stokes, all of whom appeared to belong to the higher rank of society, were sorrowful pictures of anxiety and dread, and their glances wandered continually to the clerk, and were turned impatiently toward the door through which the jury would pass to their seats.

Jurymen—Well, we stood, going out, ten for conviction and two for acquittal.

Mr. Dos Passos (one of Stoke's counsel)—Yes, and those two gave it like cravans and cowards.

Stokes (to the jurymen)—Why, you don't mean to tell me, as honest men, that any of you believed in the testimony of that scoundrel Hart? Why, I am sure there is not one man of the twelve believed in his heart what he said or did. I know how it is. Every one has been humbugged by false and perjured testimony, bought and paid for. That is the truth so help me God, at this solemn moment.

Here District Attorney Fellows came forward and said: "Ed, I hope you have no hard feelings against me; I did only my duty, and did not try to exceed it, as God made me." Mr. Fellows was weeping at this moment, and every person in Court was crushing and pushing right and left. Col. Fellows, as he made his last remark, offered his hand to Stokes who refused it and said:

"All right, Fellows, I hear all you say, and I suppose you think it's all right; but a verdict given on perjured testimony is a villainy that no one will countenance—never, so long as the world stands."

Here the court was cleared by the policemen, who behaved as if they were in a riot, and passage having been made, Stokes walked out of the court in arm with Mr. Tremain, and followed by the sobbing ladies, who clustered around him and held his hands as if they never would let go of him.

Stokes was taken to his cell in the Tomb, by Deputy Sheriff Shields, and the scenes of the second trial were concluded.

and relatives about him. His father and mother were mercifully absent, but his usually quiet sister sat close by him, watching with terrible eagerness the open door. Through it the jury, at 11:15 P.M., silently passed, followed by the venerable Judge Boardman. Only one of the twelve turned his eyes upon the prisoner as he passed in. All the rest studiously averted their faces until called upon by the clerk. Then the almost unendurable formality of calling the names of the jurors was gone through with.

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.
Judge Boardman asked them: "Have you agreed upon a verdict, gentlemen?"

Foreman—We have.

Then followed an excitement of anticipation which it is impossible to depict, and the court room was so still that one might almost have heard the unfolding of a pocket handkerchief. Then came the sharp, clear, impassive voice of the clerk, as he uttered the preliminary formula:

"Gentlemen of the jury, rise. Prisoner, stand up. Gentlemen of the jury, look upon the prisoner. Prisoner, look upon the jury. What say you gentlemen of the jury? Do you find the prisoner at the bar, Edward S. Stokes, guilty or not guilty?"

Foreman—Guilty of murder in the first degree!

The words were followed by a loud scream—almost a wail—from the sister of Stokes, who fell forward in a torrent of weeping on the shoulder of her brother. Horace cried convulsively, and crowded about him, terribly affected, but unable to assuage his terrible disappointment. He bore the ordeal, however, with tolerable calmness, considering the moment and all it meant to him. At the request of Mr. Townsend the jury was polled, and each one separately recorded his verdict.

COURT ROOM EPISODES.
Stokes then broke silence for the first time, as he turned on Mr. Beach, and said deliberately but with intense feeling: "Well, Mr. Beach, I must say you have done your work well; I hope you have been well paid for it." Then Stokes sat down. Mr. Beach did not reply; but his face was turned away from the prisoner.

Mr. Fellows, the acting District Attorney, rose, and addressing the Judge, asked that sentence be passed upon the prisoner.

As Mr. Fellows sat down, Lynn Tremain, who had been sitting by a table with his head bowed in his hand, said: "Your Honor, I hope you will not think it necessary to pass sentence at this late hour of the night. Would it not be better to wait till Monday morning?"

Judge Boardman—I see no absolute necessity for passing sentence to-night, and I see no impropriety in acting on the counsel's suggestion. I will therefore defer sentence until Monday morning.

District Attorney Fellows then addressed the court in an explanatory manner, and stated that Messrs. Beach and Fullerton had not been employed by Mr. Fisk's family, and that they had been employed by the county to assist in the prosecution.

Stokes (rising suddenly and interrupting)—Mr. Fellows, state that they were hired by Jay Gould. Please call that state.

The interruption caused great excitement in court, and when it had been allayed, Mr. Fellows resumed his address, stating that he was glad to retire from office where for three years he had been accustomed to witness such scenes of suffering and sorrow as he had witnessed to-night. The court then discharged the jury with thanks for their attendance and for the courtesy they had shown him during the progress of the trial. Then the audience began to move, and Stokes, who showed a firm manner, conversed with the sobbing ladies and his friends. Again as Stokes stood up to leave the court he spoke bitterly to Mr. Beach.

"Mr. Beach, you should be well satisfied with your work, and I hope you are satisfied, for you did it well."

Mr. Beach (excitedly)—No. Mr. Stokes, I am not satisfied with my work.

Then Stokes' friends gathered around him and got between him and Bench, as it was feared that a collision might take place. Mr. Tremain got up to leave the court with Stokes; as he did one of the jurors, a small, dark featured man, with a high hat, leaned forward over the jury-box and said to Mr. Tremain: "Well, Mr. Tremain, I hope that you do not feel any way bad against us, as we tried to do our duty. I am sure you did yours, and worked as hard for Stokes as if he was your own son."

Mr. Tremain—I have nothing to say, but how did you stand on the jury?

Juryman—Well, I do not think I have any right to state that, sir.

District Attorney Fellows—Oh, there is no harm; now it is all over, you may speak your mind.

Jurymen—Well, we stood, going out, ten for conviction and two for acquittal.

Mr. Dos Passos (one of Stoke's counsel)—Yes, and those two gave it like cravans and cowards.

Stokes (to the jurymen)—Why, you don't mean to tell me, as honest men, that any of you believed in the testimony of that scoundrel Hart? Why, I am sure there is not one man of the twelve believed in his heart what he said or did. I know how it is. Every one has been humbugged by false and perjured testimony, bought and paid for. ## "IT IS DONE."

BY DR. J. E. P. BOULDEN.

Gone to his rest, to his eternal home;
Gone where the shadows of night never come.

Gone to his God and Redeemer, the Son,
The battle is fought, the victory won;

Earth-life is o'er—"It is done, it is done!"

He died at his birth, and lived at his death;

Lived when he gave to his God his last

Lived in the love of God's crucified Son;

Lived but when Earth's fitful journey was run;

Earth-life is o'er—"It is done, it is done!"

Men often impugn the motives he had,

And those which were pure were consumed;

Yet human love he assuredly won,

And the world's esteem will ever rest upon

Him who, expiring, exclaimed: "It is done!"

Yea, "It is done;" God taketh and giveth

The life we have and that Angels liveth;

Oh! may we all, when life's journey is done,

See our Redeemer, the Eternal Son,

Before our death gaze and feel "Tis well done."

A NEW TRIBE—A California paper describes the discovery of three villages of Jumans Indians, supposed to be the survivors of the ancient Aztecs. They dwell on the great trail from Fort Mohave, on the Colorado, to Albuquerque, on the Rio Grande, and are about a day's journey from the diamond field. They number about 6,000, and are very different from other tribes, being in looks, bearing and pride of dress, a manifestly superior race. The women are comely and modest in dress, their houses are clean and their cooking good. Certain kinds of cloth are made by them. These people have fields of corn, wheat and vegetables, flocks of sheep and goats, and they keep all the domestic animals. They are friendly to the whites, never fight aggressively, but are stubborn in defense. Their houses are of stone, three stories high, and built in terrace form. They worship the Great Spirit and believe that He dwells in the sun.

ECLIPSES IN 1873.—There will be four eclipses in this year, as follows: A total eclipse of the moon May 12, in the morning. It will be partial and visible from Boston west of Chicago. West of Chicago the eclipse will be total. At Chicago the eclipse begins at 3:40 A. M.; total begins at 4:45, and the moon sets eclipsed. The moon sets with the eclipse upon it, except at San Francisco.

2. A partial eclipse of the sun May 26th; the sun rising partly eclipsed in Maine, New Hampshire, and part of Vermont and Eastern Massachusetts. At Portland, Maine, the eclipse ends at 4:37, about eight minutes after sunrise. In New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts there will be scarcely more than a contact of limbs.

3. A total eclipse of the moon November 4th, which will be visible as a partial eclipse in California and Oregon. At San Francisco and at Portland, Oregon, it begins at 5:55 in the morning, the moon setting with the eclipse upon it.

4. A partial eclipse of the sun November 19th; visible in the Southern ocean.

A young lady writes to an exchange giving a receipt for having fun. She says: "Invite half a dozen boys and girls to your house when your pa and ma are away; put a half dollar silver piece in a dish with molasses an inch deep in it, and offer it to the boy who gets it with his mouth. The more the boys who try to get it, the more fun will there be.

Some cheaper amusement would probably be more popular; this requires too heavy a specie capital for the present hard times.
